

PRIVACY STATEMENT

We at SDI Disposal ("SDI Disposal", "we", "us" or "our") respect the preferences of our customers and other users that access this Internet site to learn about or interact with us concerning the collection, storage, access and use of their personal and business information. SDI Disposal is continually developing mechanisms to enhance the user experience on this web site and to provide its users with greater choices related to information use and disclosure. By accessing the SDI Disposal web site (the "Site"), you agree to the SDI Disposal Privacy Policy. It is important that you review this Privacy Policy prior to registering on or using the Site.

SDI Disposal reserves the right to add to, update or otherwise modify this Privacy Policy at any time, and we will post the revision date on this Privacy Policy page. If we make material changes to this policy, we will post notice of the change on our Home Page. The most current Privacy Policy will apply to all data and other information collected on the Site, no matter what version of the Privacy Policy was in effect when the information was collected.

In general, you can visit the Site without telling us who you are or revealing any information about yourself. Our Web servers may collect the domain names, but not the e-mail addresses, of visitors. This information is aggregated to measure the number of visits, average time spent on the Site, pages viewed, and similar data. SDI Disposal uses this information to measure the use of its Site and to improve its contents. There are times, however, when we may need personal information from you, for instance: to process an order, to correspond with you, to provide a service, or in connection with a job application. However, we will only collect this information when it is voluntarily submitted to us. When any personal information is collected, we will let you know, at the time of collection; how we will use the information you give to us by reference to this Privacy Policy.

Your Personal Information

SDI Disposal will use personally identifiable information voluntarily submitted to us to respond to requests you make of us or to contact you in connection with your requests. Additionally, SDI Disposal may use that information to determine how we can improve its Site, business and services. Any and all uses will comply with applicable law.

The information we collect may include such items as: your name, address, telephone number, email address, payment information or interest in specific products or services.

In addition, we may use a technology called "cookies." A cookie is a tiny element of data that a Web site (including our Site) can send to your browser, which may then be stored on your hard drive so we can recognize you when you return. You may set your browser to notify you when you receive a cookie.

As a general rule, we do not sell or rent your personal or business information to any third party, except as described below or in connection with effectively maintaining and operating the Site. However, SDI Disposal cooperates with law enforcement and judicial inquires and other third parties to enforce laws, intellectual property and other rights. It may be necessary to furnish your information to third parties in connection with these objectives.

If you are using the Site to access our electronic payment system, we may request certain financial information so that we may effect the payment transaction. Our payment system may collect, store and use non-public personally identifiable information such as your name, address, credit card number, bank routing and account number, SDI Disposal account number and e-mail address to process your payments. In addition, the payment system will also collect information regarding the actual bill payment transactions, including the dates and amounts paid. SDI Disposal will store and protect this information in the same manner we store and protect other personal customer information, and this is true both for our current customers as well as our former customers. We will only disclose information to third parties about your account or the transfers you make:

- Where it is necessary for completing transactions you authorize (for example, to an outside service provider that operates the electronic payment system for us);
OR
- In order to verify the existence and condition of your account for a third party, such as a credit bureau;
OR
- In order to comply with government agency or court orders;
OR
- If you give us your written permission.

We may disclose certain information we collect about you to our affiliates who offer you waste management and disposal services, and to non-affiliated third parties that perform services on our behalf, including marketing services, or parties with whom we have joint services and/or joint marketing agreements. We reserve the right to provide non-personal identifying information, such as aggregate data, to third parties.

SDI Disposal is concerned with the security of the data and information we collect. We use commercially reasonable physical, electronic and procedural safeguards (such as Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) software) to help ensure the security, integrity and privacy of all personal information. However, due to the inherent insecurity of the Internet, no security measures should be viewed as one hundred percent effective in all circumstances. SDI Disposal cannot absolutely guarantee against a breach of its security or the actions of third parties that may seek to obtain unauthorized access to personal information.

In the event of a security breach in which personal information has been acquired, or is reasonably believed to have been acquired, by an unauthorized person, and where applicable law requires notification, SDI Disposal will notify the affected individual(s) of the breach electronically, by email or fax, or if unable to contact the individual electronically, then by US Mail. This notice will be given in a timely manner, consistent with legitimate needs of law enforcement and any measures necessary for SDI Disposal or law enforcement to determine the scope of the breach and to restore and assure the integrity of the data system.

In the case where law enforcement determines that notification will impede a criminal investigation, SDI Disposal may delay notification until law enforcement or we determine that notification will not compromise the investigation.
